

IMPCB Examination Rules - v5

1. All entries in the Application Form must be truthful, including the Name, Age, Gender, Academic qualifications (M.S., PhD, Years in training), Email (for communication regarding examination results), Citizenship, and Government issued ID card number.
2. The academic training information stated, and the transcripts including the translation submitted, must be truthful and genuine. The academic degrees must have been earned based on studies in higher education institutions accredited nationally. Academic degrees acquired totally online and/or at institutions not accredited nationally are not acceptable.
3. A candidate must have a government-issued photo identification for admission to the examination site. A passport usually meets this requirement.
4. Please use the Name Declaration form to put into record if you have used different names as shown in documents mentioned above.
5. A fully certified candidate will be automatically included in the IMPCB Registry accessible by the public, showing the Name, Citizenship, Specialty, and Gender. You can opt out by making a written request to the Secretary General or the CEO.
6. Candidates are not allowed to bring to the exam site any device that has a recorder, a scanner, or a camera, except as required for online-based exams. Smart phones are not allowed except as required for Zoom-based Part III exams. The staff will store your devices for a nominal fee. You may store your device in a luggage bag to be kept away from you during the examination. No connections to the internet of any kind are allowed during the examinations except for online exams.
7. Candidates are not allowed to disclose to others any of the examination questions, or to use a camera to capture the image of any examination question. If found sharing the questions with other people, the candidate will lose the privilege to be considered for certification for ten years. Certificates awarded will be nullified. The examination fees will NOT be refunded.
8. A person found to have intentionally submitted false information or been identified by the Proctor or the AI software of the Online exam system consistent with dishonest conduct will face disciplinary actions, which may include nullification of the certificate and examination results.
